

MUSIC TO HEAL AND INSPIRE

*With Jennifer Scott Miceli, Ph.D.,
Director of Music Education and Vocal Jazz, and Department Chair at LIU Post*

Wednesday, February 7, 2018 at 3:00

This workshop will center on the power of music, and in particular singing, to heal the human soul. Participants will hear documented accounts of singing as a catharsis for the human condition, and learn more about the philanthropic mission of Belle Voci Intergenerational Women's Choir. Join Dr. Miceli as she helps us to engage in singing and easy movement designed to enliven the spirit and uplift the soul. Come and explore ways to honor your musical gifts, and see how your voice can make a difference. Every voice counts, especially yours!

Dr. Miceli is the founding director of Belle Voci Intergenerational Women's Choir. This Long Island-based philanthropic treble ensemble includes lauded vocal music teachers and their students who sing to support cancer prevention and cure. Miceli's Audiation Sequence for Choral Ensembles featuring Belle Voci is included on the New York State School Music Association (NYSSMA) sponsored music teaching and learning DVD entitled Music Views. A flutist and a singer, she has performed in England, France, Hungary, Germany, Switzerland, Austria, and The Czech Republic.

Currently serving as President of New York Association of College Music Programs, Miceli is a specialist in Edwin E. Gordon's Music Learning Theory and the Kodály approach. She presents statewide, divisional, national, and international courses and interest sessions involving standards-based music teaching and learning, assessment, teacher education, choral music education, and academic/community music partnership programs. Miceli maintains an active guest conducting schedule that includes established community ensembles as well as numerous state-division, all-county, and district-wide elementary and secondary choral festivals in the northeast corridor.